The land may be flat, you can see but that doesn't mean everything.

“What brought us here and made us what we are is the Mighty Mississippi. We are the land of cotton and the Delta Blues, where the stories are bigger than catfish and as powerful as the waters of Ole Man River. We have been shelled, invaded, burned, flooded and plagued. And still we capture imaginations and treat our visitors warmly like long-lost friends.

On the banks of this colossal river is Greenville, a wellspring of music, literature, adventure, imagination, history and plain old fun. Greenville has inspired greatness from Native Americans to cotton barons, Pulitzer-Prize winners, Civil Rights leaders, bluesmen, poets and inventors.

We're proud to share Greenville and Washington County with all; discover for yourself that there's more than meets the eye in this land of rich customs and folklore, creativity and physical beauty that make up one of America's most unique destinations.”

How to Get Here

The Great River Road

Literally the road less traveled, but far more rewarding, America's favorite backroad is rich in history and unique finds for any traveler. The Great River Road Historic Byway of the Mississippi River offers the classic American way to relax and connect to the countryside on a leisurely scenic drive. As one of the oldest, longest and most interesting scenic byways in North America, the Great River Road is a respite to millions of travelers seeking a getaway— from a leisurely day's drive to an extended vacation.

Highway 82 and Reed Road
Greenville • 662-332-2378

Greenville has an Interpretive Center of The Great River Road. The unique structure of this center is a replica of the steamboat that originally served as the Mississippi state exhibit at the 1984 New Orleans World's Fair and harkens back to the great paddlewheelers that once plied the river.

Mid Delta Regional Airport

166 Fifth Avenue
Greenville
662-334-3121

The only commercial airport serving the Mississippi Delta, Mid-

Delta Regional (formerly Greenville Air Force Base) was built in 1942 and features a Fixed Base Operator, over 40,000 square feet of hangar space, aircraft maintenance services, and charter services. The building also houses the fascinating Air Force Base Museum.

Delta Museum Mile

The Delta Museum Mile has the most museums per square mile than anywhere in the Delta. Maybe you saw the movie or read the book, but you can see history up close here. You can see it all, from Pre-Columbian treasures to antique fire trucks, original manuscripts and World War II and Cold War memorabilia, artifacts from Delta bluesmen and the world's most famous frog, Kermit. There's something wonderful for every member of the family.

The Flood of 1927 Museum

118 South Hinds, Greenville • 662-347-2782

Exhibited in the oldest structure in downtown Greenville, this museum presents the history of one of the greatest natural disasters this country has ever known. On Thursday, April 21, 1927, at 7:45 A.M., the levee at Stops Landing, eight miles north of Greenville, broke due to the pressure from the swollen Mississippi River and created the greatest single crevasse ever to occur anywhere on the river.

In the heyday of the blues, over 150 bluesmen lived within a 100-mile radius of Leland. This museum chronicles the story of the Delta Blues and the musicians who helped make it famous and features memorabilia from Little Milton, James “Son” Thomas, and Johnny Winter.

Pick up an original cathead drawing from local bluesman, Pat Thomas, son of “Son” Thomas.

Highway 61 Blues Festival

In addition to a museum attraction, the Leland Blues Project spearheads the Highway 61 Blues Festival, held in October. Each year’s event looks to be the biggest ever, with a “delta all-star” lineup and a can’t-miss for fans of Delta Blues. Pat Thomas, Eden Brent, Jimmy “Duck” Holmes, Cedric Burnside and more often grace Leland.

Mississippi Blues Trail

The roots of the blues are embedded deep within Washington County; it’s been the backdrop to many of the key individuals and events that make up the history of the blues. Download the Blues Trail app from iTunes or Google Play to build an itinerary with directions.

1. Charley Patton (Sunflower County)

The most important figure in the pioneering era of Delta blues, Charley Patton helped define not only the genre but also the image of the rambling Mississippi bluesman.

2. Jimmy Reed

Mathis James “Jimmy” Reed, one of the most influential blues artists of the 1950s and ‘60s, was born here on the Shady Dell plantation on September 6, 1925.

3. Johnny Winter

Guitar icon Johnny Winter’s emergence on the national music scene in 1969 created a sensation among rock and blues audiences. Columbia Records featured the song “Leland, Mississippi Blues,” which paid tribute to his roots.

4. James “Son” Thomas

James Henry “Son” Thomas, internationally famed blues musician and folk sculptor, worked as a porter at the Montgomery Hotel, which once occupied this site, after he moved to Leland in 1961.

True Blues

5. Tyrone Davis

Tyrone Davis, one of America's most popular soul singers, was born on a plantation near Leland on May 4, 1938. From 1969 to 1988 Davis had forty-three singles on the national rhythm and blues charts, including the No. 1 hits "Can I Change My Mind," "Turn Back the Hands of Time," and "Turning Point."

6. Corner of 10 and 61

A major source of income for blues artists in the first half of the 20th century was tips. This corner, formerly the intersection of highways 10 and 61, was a profitable spot, particularly on Saturdays when people from the country came to town.

7. Ruby's Night Spot

Ruby's Nite Spot, operated at this site by Ruby Edwards, was one of the most prominent blues clubs in the Delta during the 1940s and '50s. Patrons here could dine, drink, dance, and gamble into the wee hours of the morning, long after clubs in nearby Greenville and Indianola had closed.

8. Sam Chatmon and the Hollandale Blues

Sam Chatmon, along with local musicians have performed on Simmons Street, known as the Blue Front, once one of the most vibrant centers of blues activity in the Delta.

9. Freedom Village

The first Mississippi Delta Blues Festival was held on October 21, 1978, here at Freedom Village, a rural community founded as a refuge for displaced agricultural workers.

10. Nelson Street

Nelson Street was once the epicenter of African American business and entertainment in the Delta.

11. Prince McCoy

McCoy was who W.C. Handy described, for years anonymously, as the "Father of the Blues."
